Must-see attractions in Rome

The Colosseum

The Colosseum, once known as the Flavian Amphitheatre, is a towering symbol of ancient Rome. Built in the 1st century AD, it was the largest amphitheatre of its time, capable of holding over 50,000 spectators. The Colosseum was primarily used for gladiatorial contests, public executions, and animal hunts. Today, it stands as a testament to the Romans' engineering prowess and their love of spectacle. A visit to the Colosseum offers a unique opportunity to step back in time and imagine the roar of the crowd as gladiators battled it out in the arena.

Fontana di Trevi

The Fontana di Trevi, one of Rome's most iconic landmarks, is a masterpiece of Baroque architecture. Located at the end of the Trevi Street, it's the largest fountain in the city and a symbol of Roman opulence. A popular tradition dictates that if you toss a coin over your shoulder into the fountain, you'll return to Rome one day. This tradition has made the Trevi Fountain a popular tourist destination and has helped to fund its restoration efforts.

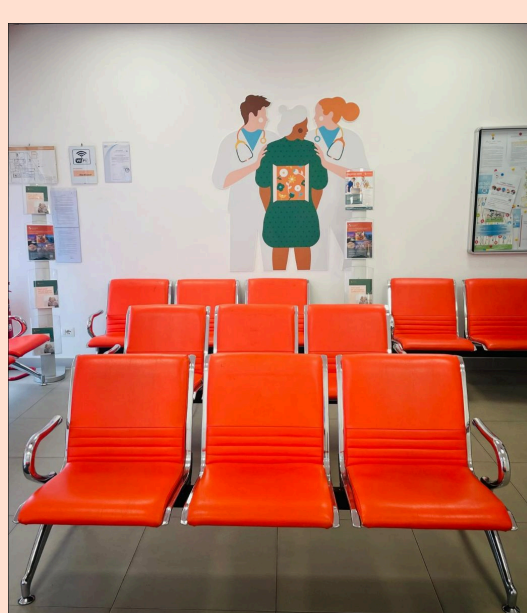

Spanish Steps

The Spanish Steps, a grand staircase connecting the Piazza di Spagna to the Trinità dei Monti church, are one of Rome's most iconic landmarks. Built in the 18th century, they are a popular gathering place for both locals and tourists. Named after the Spanish Embassy, which was once located nearby, the steps are adorned with beautiful fountains and statues, offering stunning views of the city. Visitors can enjoy a leisurely stroll up the steps, or simply relax on the wide terrace at the top.
